

Troubleshooting Tiki Wiki, Tiki settings

Troubleshooting Tiki Wiki, Tiki settings

□ MikaSfez - 2022-02-28 09:21

In this Tiki Express Video Tutorial I explain how to troubleshoot Tiki settings using the Profiles export tabs, Tiki logs and how to clear caches.

If you don't want to miss my next tutorial and want to receive a notification when I'll publish, subscribe to my youtube channel.

Links of interest:

- <https://doc.tiki.org/Profiles>
- <https://doc.tiki.org/clearing-cache>

Hello internet i'm Bernard Sfez a Tiki Specialist

We started a mini series of tutorials about troubleshooting Tiki. Previously we've seen together how to check the server settings. Now we will check together Tiki settings.

So let's start on the brand new Tiki. I will go to settings control panel and the first thing I would like to do is to change this basic setting to the advanced setting. Now that's not enough. I need to set this as my default. Let's start by adding some feature like trackers, forum. I don't know... Newsletter. Yeah that's good enough I apply.

We have a tool in Tiki in the profiles that help to understand what was changed. If I go to Profiles, tab Export I can see the actual Tiki preferences. Now if you look carefully you can see which features were not activated or disabled by default with this little 'n' (no) - (y = yes) and what was changed. There, in bold as you can see, feature Trackers, etc...

Another thing that will be very important to do now that we are here is also to check things like the System Log and the System Cache, so clear all cache when something is not going as you expected, do that first.

Another thing that we we've seen there going back to the settings control panel is the the system log, okay? Now my log is very limited and nothing very abnormal here, but you may found database error, or some warning about a setting that is not performing as expected.